

MacSwiney Believed He Would Die in Jail

By International News Service.

New York, Oct. 6.—"Peter, I'm thinkin' I'll be out o' here before long. But I'm thinkin' also, Peter, that I'll be back in gaol ere long and likely as not I'll die in gaol. Somehow I seem to be feelin' it in my blood, have felt it all my life—that I'll die in gaol. But it'll be for Ireland, Peter, for Ireland!"

In a cell of London's grim old Reading gaol, where Oscar Wilde wrote his immortal prison ballad, Terence MacSwiney said this to Peter Joseph MacSwiney, his brother, and might just before Christmas, 1916.

Peter, an American citizen, had crossed the ocean to see if he could help his brother, who with Arthur Griffith and other leaders of the Easter rebellion, was interned. A few feet from where they stood in whispered conversation but the wardens, keeping close, watch with eyes and ears, for in the midst of the war and every word could be twisted into treason.

The martyr-fire in his brother's eyes as he uttered that prediction is what lives most vividly in the memory of Peter MacSwiney, now, when any moment may bring the cable flash that Terence, the hunger-striking Lord Mayor of Cork, is dead.

TERENCE OF LAST TALK. In his last little room, at No. 229 East Thirty-first street, amid setting that would warm the cheeks of the youngest MacSwiney, the author's greatest plume, is the story of an Irish rebel, who died, not in prison, but in being. He sweated, a few intimate friends and a priest are at his bedside. As he writes in his struggle with death, suffering from pneumonia contracted in a wild flight from his pursuers, Hugh O'Sullivan, the hero, says:

"You will think nothing matters if they don't give us anything—nothing the least moment—that's the important thing—the grip they put on what the good of being alive if we give it up."

The British government, said Peter MacSwiney, "is holding Terry up as an assassin; a low, contemptible individual. Look what it says on the first page."

The interviewers recall: "To my mother's memory, for the sacrifice of her great faith, the beauty of her living example, and memory of her dead face."

"I have known the world, is that the spirit of an assassin? fairly about," said Peter MacSwiney.

"It is not for me to praise my brother," he added. "But to me Terry means more than anything. He is a Christian-like life of any human being I have known."

PRAYING FOR TERRY. Besides Peter MacSwiney there are two other members of the family may thousands of miles from the scene of his tragic struggle.

They are two sisters, both nuns. One, the Rev. Sister MacSwiney, is in St. Gertrude's College at Boston, N. C. while the other, whose name is not given, is in a convent at St. Louis. Peter MacSwiney called her the first of her brother's imprisonment. He has had no response.

"He is praying for Terry," he said, "and with them all their state-ments and all the signs in every part of the globe are praying for Terry."

Says U.S. Boys Saved by League Rejection

By M. CLYDE KELLY

(Member of the House of Representatives from Pennsylvania.)

Washington, Oct. 6.—Acceptance of Article "X" in the league of nations covenant by the United States would mean that we must accept responsibility for protecting all member nations against external aggression.

While I have always favored an association of nations to prevent war, it is essential that we should enter upon military activities only through declaration of war by Congress.

No doubt exists in my mind that if the United States had become a member of the league of nations our boys would not be overseas fighting Russia, and that too, without sanction of Congress. Article "X" would bind us to protect the integrity of Poland.

WADLEIGH DECLARED WINNER FOR SENATE

The State Ballot Law Commission declared that Arthur G. Wadleigh of Meriden is the regular Republican candidate for the Senate in the Fourth Essex District, and dismissed the claims of Senator Arthur L. Mason of Haverhill that his name be substituted for that of Wadleigh.

Wadleigh won the nomination over Mason by two votes. Mason protested on the ground that two women had voted for Wadleigh, although they were not properly registered voters, being married to aliens. He claimed also that several other ballots which were counted for Wadleigh should have been counted as blanks.

TWO HURT WHEN TRAIN CRASHES INTO ICE TRUCK

Two men were injured and passengers on the train given a fright when a Boston & Maine passenger train ran into an ice truck owned by the Cambridge Ice Company, at the

CHAUFFEUR BEATS WIFE WITH AUTO CRANK

By Universal Service.

New York, Oct. 6.—Refusal by Mrs. Anna Carlson McCormick, aged twenty-two, to resume domestic relations with her husband, may cause her death. She is in St. Lawrence Hospital in a dying condition.

She was asked by her husband, who is a chauffeur, to go riding with him in the course of the ride he pleaded that she go back to housekeeping with him, she refused. He seized her and she started screaming. He ordered her to "cut it out," and when she continued to scream for assistance he struck her on the head with a crank, fracturing her skull.

Ordinary Soap Lifebuoy Health Soap

Work up the best possible lather in warm water with some ordinary soap. Then try the same experiment with Lifebuoy. You will find that Lifebuoy makes at least 50% more lather.

Gives 50% more lather than ordinary soap

Lather which carries the mild antiseptic down into the pores of the skin

RICH, generous, bubbling lather—half again as much as with ordinary toilet soaps—that is the result of the Red Palm oils in Lifebuoy. Try the simple test shown above. See for yourself that Lifebuoy forms at least 50% more lather.

This soft, heavy Lifebuoy lather does more than loosen the dirt and carry it away. Because of the antiseptic it contains it purifies and stimulates the skin—leaves it clear and fresh with the radiant oil color look that everyone admires.

It is this antiseptic which gives Lifebuoy its unique "health" odor. Not a perfume—not the odor of a medicine—this hygienic odor makes you realize why Lifebuoy stimulates the skin and tones up the whole system.

Among the 2,000,000 families in America using Lifebuoy Health Soap are many people famous for their athletic ability and their vigorous out-door life. Read why these people have chosen Lifebuoy as their favorite soap.

Keep your skin active—glowing with health

To keep the skin active and glowing with health is easy for any average person. Already many people have found a simple, pleasant way to build up health through bathing.

Starting with a tub of warm or tepid water they bathe the whole body with the rich, generous lather of Lifebuoy Health Soap. Then comes a fresh, cold water sponge-off or shower, and a good vigorous rub-down.

Start today to use the Health Soap for bath, face and hands. Take a cake of Lifebuoy home with you. It is on sale at department, drug and grocery stores. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

Famous screen star also aviator and athlete

Viola Dana, the celebrated star with the Metro Picture Corporation, her love of flying, swimming and tennis has made Miss Dana widely known as a vigorous "out-door" girl.

"Long ago," says Miss Dana, "I learned the right soap benefits the health of the skin and the whole body. I use Lifebuoy Health Soap because its fine antiseptic and delightful, rich lather keep my skin in the pink of condition."

The youngest pitcher in the major leagues

Waite Hoyt started to play big league ball when he was 15 years old. Today, at 21, this Red Sox star is still the youngest pitcher in the Major League.

"After a hard game—plenty of warm water and a cake of Lifebuoy Soap—that is all I need to feel rested once more," says Waite Hoyt. "Lifebuoy makes a rich, heavy lather that invigorates the whole body and leaves the skin glowing with health."

$200 in prizes for letters from Lifebuoy users

Every day we are hearing from more and more Lifebuoy users who have made names for themselves. If you are one of the 2,000,000 users of Lifebuoy and have won distinction in athletics, in contests, or in any way whatever, write us a letter describing what you have done, and telling why you like Lifebuoy.

We will award prizes of $100.00, $75.00 and $25.00 for the three best letters in the new October Contest. Only condition is that you must have been a Lifebuoy user before Sept. 25th, the first day of this contest. Mail your letter on or before October 31st to Dept. H 18, Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

English Girls Wearing Half-Bobbed Hair

London, Oct. 6.—Half-bobbed hair is coming into style in England to replace the full bob, which is being dropped because it does not look well in the evening.

A West End hairdresser in reporting the change says: "The hair in front and at the sides is permanently styled, and it almost covers the forehead to meet the eyebrows. At the back, near the neck, a few children are made with longer hair. The ornament can be a variety of diamond leaves. The style goes well with the present small hats."

Police Get Wine Left in Fiancee's Cellar

Lawrence, Oct. 6.—A household brewer, who picked out his sweetheart's cellar as a safe store, is today awaiting trial of response for the police, accused of having stored wine, brandy, and other liquors in his cellar,
which was sealed at the time
the police searched it.

The sweetheart at first stoutly denied that the liquor was there, but later admitted that she and her fiance were going to take the wine to the police and that "a jug of wine and then to the police station" was the plan.
The police seized all the wine, brandies, and other liquors, and sent them to the state prison.

The police are now searching for the fiance's cellar, which was sealed at the time the police searched it. The fiance is now awaiting trial of response for the police, accused of having stored wine, brandy, and other liquors

Wireless Blamed for Bad Weather

London, Oct. 6.—Weather wireless telegraphy is the cause of Europe's persistently bad weather this year is a question now being investigated by the meteorologists. Montgomery Road, a Birmingham weather expert, asserts that the wireless is a potent cause of atmospheric disturbances.

There is no doubt," he says,
"that the superheating of the atmosphere throughout the world with an addition of electricity will be found to cause a disturbance of density such as will be sufficient to account for recent continuous world-wide rains."

In many respects to that of district attorney or prosecuting attorney in larger cities and Mr. Hubber would have the power to issue warrants for the arrest of any alleged lawbreakers. If his contention turns out to be sound, he may be well to go to court to maintain his claim of election representative.

DANIELS CLEARS HAITI MARINES

Makes Public Lajeune's Report
Refuting Charges of Cruel and Inhuman Treatment

Washington, Oct. 6.—General John
A. Lajeune's report on charges that U. S. marines had been cruel and inhuman in their dealings with the people of Haiti was made public by Secretary of the Navy Daniels. As forecasted by Universal Service, the report completely refuted the charges.

In a preface to the report, Secretary Daniels pointed out that he has given instructions for fair and humane treatment of the Haitians and that even on suppressing revolutions marines were ordered to use only such force "as was absolutely necessary." With a very few exceptions he added, these instructions were carried out to the letter.

SEES FLOOD OF QUEBEC SPIES

Miss C. F. Stoddard Predicts Americans Will Become Nuisances, Ending License

The "real danger" in Canada will shortly be deemed, according to Miss C. F. Stoddard, executive secretary of the Scientific Temperance Federation, at No. 12 Tremont street.

"The Canadian provinces, all dry except Quebec, are suffering from the sale of liquor, due to the influx of persons coming in from the States," she said. "The sale of liquor in Quebec is a nuisance, and the authorities will take the steps that are contemplated in the future to completely the sale of liquor in Canada. The standard has just returned from a conference on world prohibition and world temperance at Washington, and has at her finger tips the status of all countries as to world prohibition. Miss Stoddard rapidly outlined the international situation.

"Canada," she said, "has liquor prohibited everywhere, except in the province of Quebec. Yet the Dominion government allows the manufacture of liquor, of which the province forbids the sale. That condition will pass soon."

"To the south of us, in Mexico, we find the new government is favorable to prohibition. General Obregon is one of these who are most favorable.

TO CREATE DRY BELT.
It is proposed by France to create a dry belt, 60 miles wide, between the United States and Mexico, in which liquor may not be sold.

"This would do away with much smuggling. There are already several temperance societies in Mexico and the Catholic Total Abstinence Society will soon begin work there. The Methodists have already done work."

"Now in France, the liquor problem is different than in Mexico. In Mexico the manufacture of liquor is not here much commercialized, so that reformers do not have to battle the big manufacturers. But in France, the men who have all their capital invested in vineyards, have to be considered."

Already sixty members of the French Chamber of Deputies, are pledged to an anti-liquor program, and are also against the distillation of spirits. In England the situation is a hard one, as the liquor interests are strongly entrenched.

BEER AND WINE WARNING.
Scotland, as we agreed, will have local option, shortly. In Ireland, as one of the visiting Irishmen to our city has explained within the year, the one thing they are all in favor of is North and South, is the need of temperance instruction for the children. Perhaps somewhere there is such a temperance teaching, as in the public schools of Ireland. The children will temperance lessons, for given. Five thousand essays were written last year.

"Coming back to our own country, we may say that it is up to the United States to make prohibition a success, at all the world is watching."

Already there is an underground here which would restore beer and wine. This must never be. It is up to the voting women in Massachusetts to save the day. For women must save the day with their votes. And they must see to it that beer and wine does not come back."

"KILLED IN ACTION."
VERY MUCH ALIVE
Portland, Ore., Oct. 24.—James F. Field, a Solon hero, is walking around this city with his death certificate in his pocket. Field, according to the War Department, is dead, having lost his life "in action on the western front."

His parents have been repeatedly notified of his death by the Washington authorities. Field, however, having trouble in proving to his friends that it is not his ghost, is frustrating around the streets, is facing still other predicaments.

Hardly wounded he is seeking a vocational training course, but the State of Ohio will do nothing for him because he gave Oregon as his residence, and Oregon refuses him help because he enlisted in Ohio.

SUNFLOWER CROPS

IN BIG MAPLE TREE
Middletown, N. Y., Oct. 8.—A curiosity which is attracting many persons in this part of the State is a sunflower growing out of the trunk of a large maple tree some distance from the ground. It has a stem three feet in length and a flower in bloom the size of a saucer. A farmer is supposed to have carried the seed into the tree, where it sprouted and took root in the bark.

220,000,000 BUSHELS

Chicago, Oct. 4.—There will be $200,000,000 bushels of wheat for export this year, according to the estimate as last year, according to the report of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Lenor, Oct. 6.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Childs of East Lee have started on their fifty-seventh wedding trip, going by motor to Hudson, N. Y., and from there by boat to New York city. The same trip they took fifty-seven years ago except that at that time they drove by team from Adams to Hudson to take the New York boat.

Miss Mary Josephine Sheehan, wife of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Sheehan, of Adams, left for the Adams Hotel and the Rev. William Strickland, a former pastor.

Washington, Oct. 6.—A double-headed charge of lying was made today by President Wilson against Senator Stephen P. Spencer of Missouri in a statement issued at the White House. Senator Spencer, a Republican, is running for reelection and attacking the President's actions in the war.

The President's charge was that Spencer had said that he had promised military aid to Serbia. Spencer, however, had said that he had promised military aid to Serbia. Spencer, however, had said that he had promised military aid to Serbia.

To this Senator Spencer replied that he had not made such a statement. He said that he had not made such a statement.

LAKE ADDRESSES LIBERAL CLERGY

Strongly Advocates Internationalism at Congress in Arlington Street Church

For truth in religion, it is necessary to have a liberal clergy. The Rev. Dr. J. H. Lake, pastor of the Arlington Street Church, has addressed the clergy of the city on this subject.

He said that during the war, the clergy had been divided. Some had been pro-war, some anti-war. He said that the clergy should be united in their support of internationalism.

A Real-Fruit Jiffy-Jell Dessert—At Your Grocery This Week

Gifts to users

This week we will buy you a Jiffy-Jell dessert. Get it from your grocer and he will pay him for it. See offer below.

It will be Loganberry Jiffy-Jell—our finest berry flavor. It is free to you if you will buy one other flavor with it.

For Every Woman

This offer is made to old users and new. It is made to the lovers of Jiffy-Jell to start the new season. It is made to new users to let them know the Jiffy-Jell delights.

Every home should now put in a variety of Jiffy-Jell. It is pleasurable fruit duty. Here you have eight fruits on call, at trifling cost, with a moment's trouble.

Fruit in Bottles

Jiffy-Jell alone contains the real fruit essence, in liquid form in glass. We crush the fruit, combine the juice and seal it. A bottle of this rich fruit essence comes in every package.

Thus you get a real-fruit dainty, not a mere fruit taste. You get the delights and healthfulness of fruit.

Fruit in Pinty

You get a wealth of fruit. We use, for instance, half a pineapple to flavor one Jiffy-Jell dessert. The fruit is crushed in Jiffy-Jell—fruit too ripe to ship.

Ten Flavors in Glass Vials

A bottle in each package

Mint	Lime	Cherry
Raspberry	Loganberry	Strawberry

Monkey Gland Theory Suggests New Idea

Thousands Now Using Sheep and Cattle Gland Extracts in Tablet Form, Combined With Iron, to Build Strength and Endurance

Once people laughed at the idea that a thing like the "sheep's carotid" could be. Not to long ago people looked about airships. But automobiles and airplanes proved themselves.

And now most people have stopped laughing at gland treatment, for gland treatment seems to have proved itself, and appears to be continuing to prove itself in new ways daily.

Why Doctors Won't Do

People often used to relieve symptoms of run-down conditions temporarily by dosing themselves with stomach and nerve stimulants, but that was before the full cause of run-down conditions was known. Some time ago it was discovered that in many cases weakness, thinness, anemia and nervousness are largely due to run-down glands.

According to latest reports, glands are said to help govern the building up of the millions of cells in our bodies. As long as the glands are healthy, the blood is art to be clear and red, the muscles strong, the nerves calm. But naturally, when the glands are diseased, the blood tissue and nerves are likely to suffer. In

$1,000.00 Guarantee

Gland Compound is positively guaranteed by the Gland Compound, Inc., of 24 West 29th Street, New York, to contain the genuine gland extract of sheep (popularly known as gland extract) from certain districts of sheep and cattle, $1,000 in cash will be paid to anyone proving this statement to be untrue. Gland Compound also contains potent amounts of iron, calcium, glycophane and nuxvomica, which also help nature to restore health and strength.

short, people may be called run-down when their glands are run-down.

Helping the Glands.

The cause of much of the trouble thing to do in many instances is to help the run-down glands. Monkey gland has been used in many cases by means of an operation. But the splendid results are reported with gland Compound, taken from the glands of other young animals, such as sheep and cattle. These extracts are available in tablet form, combined with other liver ingredients such as iron, under the name of Gland Compound.

Recently, improvement is noticed after the first few days; and often a few weeks the user is greatly benefited in strength, energy and genuine health.

No Risk Offer.

You are not asked to risk a single cent to find out if Gland Compound will give you the added health and strength you seek. All you have to do is to take Gland Compound according to the simple directions for two weeks. If at the end of that time results are not satisfactory, your druggist is authorized to refund your money at once without question or delay, on your simple request.

This is the fairest offer that could be made, and it is only because of the seemingly marked success in so many cases of the new gland extract and the help of the other body building ingredients that it would be possible to back Gland Compound with such a remarkable guarantee. Remember, you risk nothing. Go to your druggist today, as Gland Compound is scarce because of the great demand. The Gland Compound is backed by all the resources of the Gland Compound Company, Inc., 24 West 29th Street, New York.

FULFILLED!

Most Amazing Story of Industrial Achievement in the History of New England Enterprise

Several months ago a few men of energy and determination conceived the idea of a great Tire and Rubber industry founded on the principle of distributing the profits of that industry among the people. The founders of the Kelley Tire and Rubber Company knew that the history of most great enterprises showed that the people were seldom welcomed on the initial financing and that the real large profits were shared by a limited few. These men determined that they not only would build one of the finest and greatest Tire and Rubber plants in the world, but that it would be an industry owned by the people, operated in the interests of the people and bring the great profit from industry to the people.

A NEW INDUSTRIAL ERA

Like every prophet who proposes a revolutionary idea, these men met every difficulty. Now that accomplishment can be written on the banners of the Kelley Tire and Rubber Company, it is with no bitterness of heart that it is revealed that conservatives and skeptics of every stamp ridiculed the idea of a great tire industry owned by the people and conducted for the people. Today, instead of an industry owned by a few men, we see one with thousands of shareholders from every walk of life, each a part owner in an industry that is stamped with SUCCESS. Instead of opposition and criticism we find admiration and praise on the practical completion of this great and lofty ideal. Instead of a prospect we find accomplished the great plant of the Kelley Tire and Rubber Company.

A TRULY WONDERFUL PLANT

There are Tire industries in this country that boast of their size, others of their beauty and still others of their compactness and efficiency, and no doubt they speak with honesty and truth. The factory of the Kelley Tire and Rubber Company, with the utmost justice, can justly claim that for size, beauty, efficiency and economic arrangement, it has few equals among the industrial plants of this country. Built on the main line of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, it is unsurpassed in advances of location. The main building, now nearing completion, is a great structure of reinforced concrete, constructed with brick, three stories high, and long by eighty feet wide. There are in addition three other buildings in various stages of erection; the office building now completed and occupied for some months, the power plant and the spreader building, all to be connected with the main building. The entire group has been described by the India Rubber World, an authority in the Tire industry, as one of the finest and best equipped Rubber plants in America.

THE LAST WORD IN EQUIPMENT

The machinery and equipment of the plant is unrivaled anywhere. The huge calender mills, now on the premises, are being set up and made ready for operation. These mills are set on great blocks of cement embedded in solid rock, thus eliminating all vibration or jar to the building. Other machinery is also at hand and will soon be set up by experts and made ready for early operation. If you could only stand on the hillside in the town of West Haven, suburb of New Haven, Conn., and look down upon this plant and think that you could own a part of it, to be one of its owners and share in its profits, how your heart would swell with pride! To look upon it, to see it with your own eyes would convince you in a twinkling that at last you, too, have a chance in the Tire industry and can look for the same dividend checks that even the richest and most powerful enjoy.

A CONVINCING ARGUMENT

Of course, there are people who to feel that thrill would feel compelled to stand on that hill in West Haven and look down upon the Kelley plant. There are others and myriads of them who have faith, who believe in the printed page. Think of those who invested in this company in the very beginning, when it was but an idea; who believed in the principles and purpose of the founders to build this great tire plant owned by the people. Do you not think that their judgment was sound? They saw the great opportunity and they grasped it, and they will indeed be the proficients by their wisdom. When you reflect that investors in England, France and Germany, who never saw the United States, before the war invested hundreds of millions of dollars in American industries, can you feel loyal to your country and not have the same faith in our industries? Even if you were prompted by the most selfish motives, you cannot neglect such an unusual opportunity to participate in the brilliant future of one of New England's greatest industries.

LOOKING FORWARD

Men who follow the Tire and Rubber industry as a life work, look forward to a period of unexampled prosperity. The temporary deflation of prices in all commodities they deem a most healthful sign. The announcement of Henry Ford of a substantial cut in price on the ever-popular Ford Car is perhaps one of the great strokes of the times. It means that almost every family will soon be the owner of an automobile. This, of course, indicates a tremendous additional consumption of tires. The timorous investor, frightened by the shortening of credit in the early spring, is now re-entering the buying market. Some of the finest investments ever offered to the American public have since been placed upon the market. Many of those who are now buying will secure income from their investment sufficient to care for them for the remainder of their life. Today such fine investments as the Kelley Tire and Rubber Company are offered and the thoughtful investor will take advantage of the opportunity while many others are idly thinking about it.

MARMON 34

We cannot reduce prices under present conditions without cutting the quality of the raw material and the workmanship that enter into the manufacture of Marmon cars.

There has been no break in the price of material or labor that would warrant any reduction in the price of Marmon cars.

In comparing the Marmon car prices, during the price-advance period, with those of other makes of cars, you will see that no attempt was made by Nardys & Marmon Company to get the very high prices that were possible during and since the war.

Therefore, there is no reduction in sight in the price of Marmon cars, our factory fight being to prevent an advance.

The highest honor conferred on any industrial organization during the war was the award of the "Champion Liberty Motor Builders" presented to the workers of the Nardys & Marmon Company.

People Must Be Patient Until Trade Naturally Adjusts Itself

Prices on practically all commodities are falling, but people must understand that decreases in prices through retail channels must be slow.

Merchandise for retail sale must usually be bought long in advance of the time the stuff actually is sold over the counter.

Contracts must be made and deliveries must be arranged for. Every merchant, in order to do the very best by his patrons and in order to meet competition, is buying as nearly as possible from hand to mouth in order that he may give to his customers—as he must if he wants to remain in business—the promptest service in the matter of decreasing prices.

But there are many commodities which the merchants have on their shelves now which were necessarily contracted for months ago before prices had begun materially to fall, and it would be unfair and unreasonable, and not for the best interests of the community, that the merchants be expected to take extraordinary losses on such goods.

Many of such goods are being marked down to cost or even below cost as a matter of policy, because no store can continue in big business with old goods on its shelves whatever the price, but there is a limit to the losses that any one merchant can take if he is to remain in business for further service to the community.

Every good merchant desires low prices on merchandise and is afraid of high prices. He knows that in the long run restrict and damage business; and he knows, moreover, that a period of high prices is inevitably followed by a period of low prices, and that in the transition he may be caught with a stock of goods which he must necessarily sell at a very considerable loss.

"The people must be patient and must be ready to believe, first, that most merchants are desirous of hastening the decrease in prices, and, second, that in any event natural competition will force such decreases as promptly as the somewhat complex conditions of the retail business permit."

Irish Republic Reaches Point Where Recognition Is Due

Thomas Jefferson as our first Secretary of State laid down the rule concerning the requirements which we would make of a people before we recognized their government or their independence of another government. He said that any people wishing to establish a government of their own who should give substantial evidence that they desired their independence would be recognized by America.

Every day the Irish people are giving substantial evidence of their desire to be independent. Every day distinguished British statesmen admit the substantial character of the Irish people's claim to independence. It was only the other day that Viscount Grey declared that Ireland was in a large part beyond the control of the British military forces or of any representative of the British power. He probably astonished most Americans by the statement that the British were unable to make their judiciary function, but that the Irish revolutionists were able actually to hold court and did judicially adjust disputes between the parties and did it successfully. This does not seem creditable, but Viscount Grey would not make the statement so public if it were not true.

Who is Viscount Grey? He was the British Foreign Minister at the outbreak of the war as he had been ten years before, and he served for two years during the war in that capacity. He was, during his period in office, considered the greatest of the European diplomats. He calls upon England to settle the Irish question and to settle it quickly and to settle it in a way that will be final and satisfactory to the Irish people. It may be presumed that Viscount Grey did not make the British authority in Ireland more ridiculous than it is. Viscount Grey is too much of an Englishman to do that.

Now comes the evidence that not only are the Irish Republicans to hold court in Ireland, but that they are actually imposing and raising taxes. A people which is able to maintain a judiciary and to levy and raise taxes clearly have met our long established test for recognition.

President Wilson Resumes Command of Campaign

Everyone should heartily agree with President Wilson's statement Monday that the League Covenant is "The most momentous issue that has ever been presented to the people of the United States."

It is greater than any party or any candidate. Mr. Wilson declares "this election a genuine national referendum." He adds: "The chief question is whether the Treaty of Peace as made at Versailles shall be ratified by the United States, including the League of Nations as organized and empowered in that treaty."

We are very glad that President Wilson's health permits him to resume command of the campaign and to continue his speeches. If we could, we would insist that he make a public address on every one of the twenty-seven days that remain of the campaign. His tour of the country last year focused the attention of the country on the league for the first time. His arguments in favor of it so stimulated popular thoughts and discussion that twenty-three out of forty-seven Democratic senators, understanding its provisions for the first time, realized its un-American character and finally voted against Mr. Wilson.

It is fortunate that Governor Cox and Senator Harding have made the issue equally clear. Mr. Cox in his letter of acceptance said of the Wilson league:

"The difference between Senator Harding and myself is that I am in favor of going in and he is in favor of staying out."

Senator Harding later quoted this, and said it was a correct statement of his position.

There are no differences of opinion between the foes of Mr. Wilson's league as to the cardinal question. They oppose the covenant because it is not a league for peace, but a league for war. It is not a league of peoples to promote justice. It is a league of intriguing foreign officials to control the world.

The sole object of this campaign is to preserve and protect the independence of the United States and to defeat Mr. Wilson's pernicious league, which serves only to prolong the agony of war.

Our hero painted a fine picture, showing himself, his bride and the fourteen children marching gayly toward the presidential domicile. It was entitled "THE ROAD TO THE WHITE HOUSE." While they were out of the room for a few moments somebody changed the title of the picture. It was a fierce deal. Ah, well, that's the way it goes. You never know what minute something will—

More Truth Than Poetry

Let the Reformers Be Comforted

By S. E. KISER

WE hear complaints about the way in which the modern mind dresses; Her modesty is gone, they say.

She shows her legs and bobs her tresses. Unchaperoned she ventures out; This taking reckless, fearful chances;

The old and reformer moans about The evil in the present dances.

"THE girls are going wild," he cries; "They've lost their goodness and their graces;

They hide too little from our eyes, They powder in the public places!

They read things that they shouldn't read, And see things that they should be shunning;

We warn them, but they give no heed, Nor fear the frightful risks they're running."

WE hear about old-fashioned ways, When girls were always closely guarded;

In dragging skirts and pinching stays, It seems, their progress was retarded.

The plays they saw were very tame, All realism was forbidden;

The word "legs" made them blush for shame, They had to keep their heads well hidden.

THE old reformer may be right; Perhaps the girls have grown too daring;

Yet some seem rather shy, despite The scanty petticoats they're wearing.

And maybe girls sometimes went wrong, While good Victoria still was reigning.

Although their skirts were full and long And sex was something past explaining.

THE IDEAL CHIEFTAIN

What this country needs is a President who can know more than all of the rest of the people combined, without letting himself be convinced that all the rest of the people combined don't know anything.

Letters to the Editor

Two-Platoon System

Editor Boston American:

On the coming election day a most important subject will come before the voters for their consideration. It will be as follows:

Shall the Boston firemen be granted the two-platoon system; or, in other words, shall they work twelve hours a day three hundred and sixty-five days a year, with the exception of fourteen days' vacation?

This plan will do away with the present twenty-four-hour continuous duty.

The two-platoon system has been adopted by most of the cities throughout the country, and in thirty-three Massachusetts cities and towns. I understand it has the endorsement of the International Association of Fire Chiefs, and in no city where this plan has been in operation have they ever returned to the old, continuous duty system.

As the matter of expense, if this plan should mean increase in maintenance, it would be more than offset by increased efficiency. For example, if one shift has been working at some large fire, they would be replaced at the end of their tour of duty by a fresh crew of men, and, furthermore, the men on the off shift would constitute a reserve force that would be available at all times in case of great necessity.

I would like to suggest that between now and election day the voters inquire as fully as possible into the merits of the two-platoon system, and go to the polls firmly resolved to give justice to the firemen. I trust the voters will give this matter their earnest consideration. DEAN M. ELLIS, Brookline.

Supply and Demand

Editor Boston American:

On the first of July, with fine weather, good shipping facilities by water and rail, a Connecticut town furnished this example of conditions:

"No, we have not enough coal to fill orders, may have more in a week. Wait two weeks. 'None yet.' At end of month, 'We will not take any money, or guarantee a price, payment can be made to driver when delivered.'"

At end of third month, still waiting. Meantime paying for what it can get at rate of $12 per ton bought in small bags. Supply and demand is supposed to regulate prices. If the supply can be controlled a demand can be created and the cash collected from the public. But the consumer gets an idea that some one is in jail.

SUCCESSFUL MEN WHO STICK TO FRIENDS

By Damon Runyon

Copyright, 1920, Star Company.

SOME twenty-five years ago two men started out to make fortunes back in my home country.

One of them found a gold mine in the Cripple Creek district. The other discovered a new system for handling ore.

Both grew very rich. These men are much alike in many respects. There is even a slight physical resemblance. They came from the same class of people. They went to the same school. They are both industrious, respectable.

Their careers are so closely allied they look back in my home country they are held up jointly to aspiring youth as examples of notable achievement.

To me one is no far ahead of the other in point of success that there is no comparison. The ore handler has made every man around him wealthy. The mine owner has kept all his associates poor.

John J. Pershing had his critics for some of the promotions he made when he was at the head of the A. E. F. in France, but I call your attention to the fact that Pershing carried every man who was around him when he started to shoot upward along with him. They were his friends.

It was charged that Pershing showed favoritism. No doubt he did, but he wanted his friends to succeed with him.

He could easily have avoided criticism by foresting his friends. He could have gone on alone, leaving his old associates behind, but he was not galled that way. I always liked Pershing for that.

Roosevelt Criticized Theodore Roosevelt was a great hand for carrying his friends with him as he went along. He, too, was criticized, and he, too, made mistakes, but his friends went with him just the same.

I have always thought Andrew Carnegie was entitled to more credit for making his associates wealthy than for all the libraries he donated. I know a lot of other so-called philanthropists who have kept their immediate following as poor as church mice.

Some men, growing rich, will not let their friends in on their prosperity for fear it will make those friends independent of them in some way.

You will find that such men generally die without any friends, and with only scoundrels around them.

Melody

HUMANITY, unquenchably beautiful, incurably poetic, absurdly mortal. Your bright soul simply will not grow in a sea of mud.

In prison, you make songs in the night. Enslaved, sweating, beaten, you chant your plantation melodies. Betrayed and forsaken, you sing of remembered days. In the blood and grime of battle your hands play, and amid the vermin of the trenches you rip out your brave chorus.

Man may be beautiful, but what a beautiful, unconquerable beast! So play on, old organ grinder! Blare out your bold protest against the dull tyranny of Fate and proclaim the reign of Fancy.

You also have your message from the high gods. It will be a sad day for us all when about the clutter and hie and thump and cackooing of this huge dead, unresponsive steam engine of Progress there shall float no wisp of melody.

PSYCHOLOGY LESSON IN AN APPLE TREE

By Garrett P. Serviss

I HAVE a big, old, neglected and frowny, but immensely energetic Baldwin apple tree whose outer branches have bent down to the ground all around, making a grand umbrella, while the inner, crooked, knotted limbs are bushy with prickly shoots, every one of which useless appendages exists, I suppose, at the cost of a possible apple. Assailed by swarms of minute enemies and unaided by the protective devices of the insecticidal fruit-grower, the strong old tree has, during the years that I have known it, turned its energies from producing apples to developing leaves and bountifully covered with thickets of twigs.

But this Autumn, with sudden inspiration and an outburst of vigorous activity in the old line, the magnificent tree has covered itself with glory and with apples! And so, just at the time when the world seems determined to try living on illness and nobody works who can strike out of it, I have had to turn from other pressing occupations and pick those unexpected apples myself.

Week's Work

For more than a week I have been getting them down, a few bushels per day, as opportunity and weather permitted, filling proud barrels with the red glow and growing more and more astonished at their endless abundance.

But—and here is the nub of what I set out to say—the principal reward of my unaccustomed labor has not been the apples, great as that is, but has been a wonderful lesson in practical psychology. The tree has been a new world for me. For hours perched at the top of my ladder, among its mighty boughs, under the impenetrable canopy of leaves and radiating branches, carrying my wire cage at the end of a 10-foot pole with a bird and now and then screaming somewhere on my level, and little strange breezes starting me with their touch, I hunted the red apples among the green clouds with an eagerness of pure interest in the pursuit that banished memory of time, place, and the world below.

Adventure Alone

I was as much alone, as completely thrown upon my resources, as a conquistador in the country of the Aztecs seeking marvels and wonders in unexplored Florida. It was not the value of the apples that I sought, but the thrill of the adventure that gave me delight, and rendered me unconscious of the physical strain I was under.

Until I changed my position, or started to descend, and found my legs benumbed and all my muscles sore.

They are all embarrassed now, beautiful to look at and luscious to eat, but what I really owe to them and the old tree is an awakening of energy and self-confidence through the discovery of another kind of work that I can do, and in which imagination can share.

Stars and Stripes

We never knew there were so many pygmy minds in the country until we heard the news of the Maine and Georgia elections.

The only difference between horse thieves and pickpockets is that the former confine their operations to the stables.

A psychologist, explaining Babe Ruth's home runs, says that confidence will enable one to do anything. Perhaps, but it never paid the rent.

In London a tenant cannot be evicted until proof is clear that he has some place to go. They order some things very differently abroad.

The Interstate Commerce Commission favors fair profits for dealers in railway bonds. Why not? The consumer pays, and under private ownership nobody cares for him.

Poor fellow! He has lost his sight. His life is wrecked, his mind is dashed.

He wasn't in the Argonne fight, but had poor luck while he was based.
